Report on

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT AND

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS

Date: 30/06/2018

Venue: Seminar Hall

Research is defined as a careful consideration of study regarding a particular concern or a problem using scientific methods. Research is a systematic inquiry to describe, explain, predict and control the observed phenomenon.

Development is an extension of theoretical and practical aspects of a concept, design, discovery, or invention. Research and development (R and D) is the process by which an organization or a scholar works to obtain new knowledge which is used to create new technology, products, services, or systems. It is a systematic activity combining both basic and applied research and aimed at discovering solutions to problems or creating new products, services and knowledge. Research and Development may result into ownerships of intellectual property such as patents.

Intellectual property rights are the rights given to persons over their own creations of ideas. They usually give the creator an exclusive right over the use of his/her creation for a certain period of time.

A patent is a set of exclusive rights granted by a sovereign state or intergovernmental organization to an inventor or assignee for a limited period of time in exchange for detailed public disclosure of invention research activities in the institute.
